WALLACE R. FARRINGTON, EDITOR.

WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 30, 1895.

The admirable letter of the Honolulu correspondent of the Washington Star, published in that paper of January 15th, stated very clearly the political situation here, at the time it was written, and the possibility of an outbreak in the near future. No statement could have been made more opportunely, as a prelude to the telegraphic news of the rebellion in Honolulu, which was published in the same Washington paper of the 19th inst. The public in that city had been so well posted in advance, that when the news carried by the Alameda reached there by telegraph, the exact situation here was known, and the collapse of all the plans of the deluded rebels foreshadowed with remarkable accuracy.

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND will have reason to remember that there is a slight sentiment favoring annexation in the little State of Maine. If we are not very much mistaken he has more than a passing acquaintance with the person and influence of one, John L. Stevens, who is now quietly but effectively wielding an editorial pen in the city of Augusta. Mr. Stevens' near neighbors—Senators Frye and Hale—have not let an opportunity pass to throw hot shot into the camp of the cuckoo guarding the Cleveland Hawaiian policy, while Representative Boutelle, whose undaunted courage has never been questioned when a matter of right or wrong is involved, is always to be found leading the van when Hawaii's interests are at stake. There is certainly a bond of sympathy between Hawaii and rock-bound, loyal New England.

ABLE TO STAND ALONE.

Whatever turn events in the United States in which this country is concerned, may have taken since the last advices were received, the American people will find that the determined little Republic of Hawaii has from first to last pursued a careful and dignified policy which will rejoice the hearts of her friends and set at naught the schemes and intrigues of her enemies. Hawaii is today nearer annexation to the United States, not simply because it is something that is bound to come and each day that passes brings the day nearer, but rather owing to the fact that this country has demonstrated beyond all question its abilities as a governing power that cannot be twisted or shaken from its foundation by the first serious ill wind that blows across its political arena.

It is indeed cheering news which we are enabled to send to the States today. Not only has the backbone of the rebellion been broken, but the Government is slowly but surely twining its fingers of justice about each and every vertebra that has made up the miserably constructed spinal column and crushing them into a bone meal which carefully digested, will add new strength to the bone and sinew of a young and healthy republic. Not only this, our Government has struck at the very nerve centers and is dissecting the revolutionary animal in a manner that assures no earthly resurrection within the confines of Hawaii. Liliuokalani like her dictator friend Cleveland, has seen that politically she is a dead letter, and the less she dabbles in the affairs of the nation, the better for her and all who would follow in her footsteps. The actions of both have been repudiated by the people whom each swore to serve and protect with honor and dignity.

Hawaii seeing that she could not realize the moral support from a nation which ought to have something more than a simple feeling of friendliness toward her, has quietly steered for the open unaided and alone, and shown to the world that if worst comes to worst she can exist without the protecting influence of a friendly lee shore. Business, which during the first week of the rebellion was practically at a standstill, is going forward with a renewed energy, inspired by the increased confidence that for the first time in its history this country is in the hands of a Government that can deal properly with any internal strife that may arise. The military tribunal practically holds the fate of the nation in its hands, and it could not be with a more trustworthy body. The people have full and complete confidence in the outcome of the deliberations of this court. Every day the political prospects grow brighter. Royalism, as a subject for political division, is now a matter of history. Party lines may be drawn on the issue of annexation vs. the continuance of the Republic. The opposition to this all-absorbing object of American sentiment, should it happen to show its head, will, however, be buried as completely as has the royalist opposition to the existing powers.

The work of the military and civic supporters of the present Government will not be complete or its ardor diminished a degree until the stars and stripes float over the Executive building of Hawaii by order and with the full consent of the Houses of Congress and Chief Executive of the United States—representatives of the American people.

In commenting on the fact that as late as 1824 a woman in England was muzzled for being too free with her talk, the Journal des Debats, Paris, remarks dryly that "those persons who think that nothing has been done to ameliorate the lot of women during this century are wrong."

The necessity for a revenue cutter for Honolulu and vicinity has been materially felt during the past few weeks more than ever before. Nor will the feeling die out while opium is contraband. Scarcely a week passes but what some "long, low, rakish craft" is sighted off the islands by officers of the island steamers and the next we hear is that opium has fallen in price. Nearly every one believes that a revenue cutter would be a factor in reducing the quantity of the drug landed on these shores. It has long been said that if opium may be landed other things could be; from disclosures recently made the opinion may be changed to read: "if arms can be landed opium can." With a revenue cutter capable of making 12 knots an hour, there's no reason why, with the amount of information the Government receives from men at the coast, regarding the shipment of opium into this district, that the traffic could not be checked. There could be no "job" in providing for such a department because it could be let out on tenders, and the best bid accepted. There is no necessity for a large steamer, it would only be in the way, something about the size of and on the same lines as the Iwalani would answer the purpose admirably. Besides being used as a patrol it would be ready at all times for such emergencies as have been felt for a steamer during the past year or so. The Government has had to pay considerable money to transportation companies for steamers, and this sum could have been saved the Government if it had owned a cutter. If Necker island should be used as a cable station, there may be other occasions when a vessel of this character may be needed.

Did you ever see such a collection of beautiful pieces of Haviland China as we show in our window this week? Just examine the decorations and see their character! Oyster plates with delicate sprays of forget-me-nots twined in beautiful combinations of old gold and smylax around the edges. If you are giving a dinner your table will look better, and you will still more win the admiration of your guests if you have the dishes to set it with. If you will notice the illustrations in any of the magazines showing interiors of fine dwellings you will see on all the dressing tables pictures of a half dozen bits of China on a tray. These are known as Boudoir Sets and contain 11 pieces. We have them in chrysanthemum and Marguerite patterns, and sell them at $4.50. They contain boxes for puffs, pins and all sorts of things used on a dressing case. Another pretty set is called "Solitaire" and is designed for the use of one person. It contains a sugar bowl, creamer, teapot and cup and saucer on a very pretty tray. They are decorated in really exquisite designs.

The dinner set shown in the upper window of our store is the handsomest in Haviland we have ever had. It contains 156 pieces and is rather different in design from anything we have ever imported. The decorations are in pure gold in a sort of scroll design. The coffee cups both large and small, are very pretty in shape, as are the rest of the dishes. This set is especially commended to people who entertain and who want a proper outfit for their tables.
